EVE.

Outside the fast closed gates of her lost home
Lay hapless Eve,
And in her new, unequaled agony
She moaned: "Relieve,
O God, this pain! Have pity on my lot!"
The great God heeded not.
The sun shone on in heartless brilliancy,
The weary day dragged itself slowly by,
But in the evening—hark, a feeble cry!
God's curse hath been forgot
And past alarms,
Eve glories in her lot—
Her child is in her arms.
—Elizabeth Harmon in Godey's Magazine.

WHY HE ENLISTED.

As the recruits commenced to scatter around in the shade the journalist and the Hancock volunteer proceeded toward the headquarters of the colonel of the regiment. After the salutations had been exchanged before the tent of the commanding officer the volunteer addressed the colonel, saying, "Cap'n, if you need any more of Hancock county boys I'll get'm for you."

"If they're all as fine looking physical specimens as yourself," the colonel answered jovially, "I'd like to have a whole army of them. Our regiment will be filled up in a day or so, but I'll let you know in time."

After they had left the quarters of the colonel and were stretched upon the grass in the shade the newspaper man took occasion to put his favorite question, "Why do you enlist?" Sometimes this question elicits an outburst of patriotic ardor which fills the air with stars and stripes and eagles, sometimes (most frequently) it calls forth a hard luck story, which paints in glowing colors the virtues of the victim, but on this occasion the answer was merely, "Well, I have nothin to lose." "But," protested the newspaper man, "there's no telling how long you'll have to be from home, and there's no man that will take the same interest in running your plantation that you do, for I presume you are a farmer."

"That's true, sir; that's true," was his deliberate response, "but you see things ain't just as they was. Before Mary left I took interest in everything, but now—I jes' turnt the farm over to a couple of fellows an thought I might's well to come to the front an fight for my country. I'm 34 years old, an I ain't never done nothin but farm, an I thought I'd take a little fightin in mine jes' at this stage."

Here a forced smile played over his rugged, careworn features. The correspondent wished to follow the clew just thrown out about the desertion of Mary, but didn't know just how to proceed. "Well, I don't want to discourage your patriotism," he said, "but you're giving up the peaceful leisure of rural life for the dangers and excitement of a campaign in which disease is as much to be feared as Spanish bullets."

"Stranger," said the volunteer, "that's jes' it. From the way you talk bout 'peaceful' leisure I see you ain't never lived in the country. Farmin's a good thing if a man's got money or don't mind workin, an I don't, but that was jes' the whole trouble. I b'l'eve now when I think of it that if I had a had more time to make her happy she'd a been contented to stay, but it seemed to me we was married at the busiest time of the year, an then afterward it looked like I had jes' as much to do at all times. I always had to look after the milkin at daybreak, an then besides the regular work there's enough chores and the like to keep a fellow hustlin all the time. Even on rainy days there's harness to mend an such. But, friend," and here his face brightened up until it was radiant with the recollection, "if you could have seen that little wife of mine in the dairy you'd a seen the prettiest sight you ever saw. In a little speckled calico, skimmin the milk an washin the crocks, singin the whole time, jes' as happy as a lark. She looked like a little pink rosebud. Sometimes it seemed to me she was more like a angel than a woman. But I beg your pardon, sir," he concluded, refilling his pipe, "you said you wanted to meet all the Hancock boys here, an I guess I'd better go make you 'quainted with 'em 'stead of tellin you all my personal affairs, which isn't the right things to tell to strangers."

This sudden halt in the narrative annoyed the journalist, who had interviewed woman suffragists, heard the confessions of criminals, synopsized the prayers of ministers and even invaded the sanctity of the home for the purpose of publishing to the world the secrets of private life. The story had somehow placed him in that supersympathetic condition from which tact takes flight; but, summoning the little skill which remained, he determined to make the man lay bare his heart.

"No," he said, "don't apologize for anything you say to me. I'm interested in it all. When a man is manly and patriotic, his life is always interesting to me. We all have our sorrows, and it's a relief to tell them occasionally. Did you say your wife is no longer with you?"

Blundering as this speech may seem to a mind which seeks and finds hidden motives, it was sufficient to satisfy the simple son of Hancock county, so he continued:

"Yes, sir, it's over three months since I saw her. Understan, now, I ain't blamin her at all. She was young an pretty an full of life, an so I'd jes' rather to think of it all as a big mistake. For a little time after we was married she seemed to be happy, but then I noticed that she didn't 'pear to take the same interes' in things. It was jes' after she had spent the day at Sulphur Springs with a lot of young folks. I drove her over there to a picnic one mornin an then come for her in the evenin. There were a dozen or more girls there an several young men from the cities, but there warn't none of 'em could touch her when it comes to looks. She seemed to enjoy bein with 'em so much that I coul'n't help kinder standin round an lookin on for awhile, but then I hurried on back, for I had a lot of hoein to look after.

"Well, sir, I was the proudest man in the world when I went back there for her that night. Everybody crowded round, even the old ladies, an told me what a pretty dancer Mary was. All the young folks in the country was there, but Mary was the populares' of 'em all. They wouldn't hear to our drivin back then, but made us both come right in to supper. I didn't exactly calculate on doin this, but Mary looked like she wanted to, so I did. They tried to make me dance, but I don't know how. It was the openin of a new summer hotel, you know. A young fellow that set next to me at the table an was mighty polite in handin me everything said he was gonter be there at the hotel for some time, an that we mus' come 'round often. Of course I asked him to come see us too. He was a pretty glib talker. When we was leavin an tellin everybody goodby and promisin to come again soon, I heard a lady from New York say to another one, 'Wouldn't she be a queen with the right trainin?' We got in the spring wagon an drove home, an she was jes' all excitement tellin me what a time they had that day an how I ought to learn to dance.

"Two days after some ladies drove round in their carriages an asked her to go to the Springs with 'em again. She said 'No,' but when she seen I was anxious to have her go she went with them. They drove back after supper, her and the two ladies an a young man, an they all told me I ought to have been there. That night she seemed kinder unres'less. She talked a heap 'bout the nice things they'd all said 'bout her at the Springs, but mostly talked 'bout how nice it would be if we could go an travel an go to New York an everywhere, an she said we ought to read books an the like, an that a lady there said what she needed was cultivatin.

"I didn't like this, talkin 'bout her like she was a field to be plowed up, 'stead of a flower jes' to grow an bloom natural, an when I told her this she jes' laughed an slapped her hands over my mouth. She went to the Springs right regular for a time. Then she wouldn't go no more. Somebody sent her some books—four or five of 'em. She commenced to read one of 'em out loud to me one night. 'Twas a nice story about some rich folks, some artists, an how they was lovin each other, an the thing they went to, but while I got to likin the pesky books after awhile, I told her all the time that it was jes' stories an that there wasn't no such folks in Paris or New York or anywheres else. Since she was teachin me, a-readin out loud, I took to teachin her, tellin her what I thought 'bout the books. I told her that life was a reality an that even if there was such people they wasn't no better off than us, 'cause there's advantages an disadvantages everywhere, an it all 'mounts to 'bout the same an everything in its place is the best. That's the way I'd write if I wrote books.

"Maybe it was readin in them durn books 'bout the fashion an the wealthy, or maybe it was them people at the Springs put foolish notions in her head, or maybe it was jes' 'cause she come to know she was too good an pretty for a man like me, but anyhow she commenst to pine an droop like a flower that's witherin. I'd beg her to go to the Springs an enjoy herself like she was invited to do, but it warn't no use. She wouldn't do it. After 'bout a week of this thing that same lady from New York drove up to our gate an asked Mary to come in an pay a visit to her at the Springs. She wanted her to stay as long as she would, an then Mary did agree to go an stay a week, makin the condition that I was to come to see her every day.

"It's a lonesome time I had then. I didn't go to see her but three days, an every day it seem to me I was unwelcomer than before, so I thought I better not go no more an let the chile enjoy her visit. It look to me like the harder I try to please her the more things would go wrong. Wimmin folks is curious little things, stranger, an a awkward fellow like me don't know jes' how to handle 'em. I had done mortgaged my farm again an went in town an brought her silks an dresses an gloves jes' the right size, an when she see 'm she jes' cried an said I was too good to her. Then I got her a piano, but nothin would suit. This was befo' she went for the last time to the Springs. The things is all at home now, but I never wants to see them again, an if God spares me I never will. There's nothin else to say now, but that I lef' 'cause I couldn't stan' the sympathy an the talkin of the neighbors after I got this letter."

Here he paused and took from the inside pocket of his corduroy coat a square envelope addressed in a round, girlish hand. The faint odor of violet sachet which had once permeated the pages could still be detected, though mingled somewhat with the aroma of tobacco. It read:

I hope that you will understand and forgive me, Jack, although I know that God never will. I was never happy with you, and I never was able to make you happy. A noble, unselfish man like you deserves a better wife. When you get this, I will be far away. Don't try to find me, for you never can. MARY.

After the correspondent had read and returned the letter both men were silent. They watched the little knots of officers and privates talking together under the shade trees, the squads of ununiformed recruits crossing the grounds to their various commands, the amateur cooks preparing the midday meal and all of the lazy restlessness of camp life. The Hancock volunteer was the first to speak. "What pesters me most in that letter," he said in a voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "is that she says that she knows that God never will forgive her, an sure God (if there is any) shouldn't be more unforgivin than one of his creatures. If I b'l'eved prayers was ever answered, I'd be prayin for that little girl now, but as 'tis the bes' thing I can do is to go to the front fight for my country."—Barton [illegible] in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FLAWS IN BIG GUNS.

INTERNAL DAMAGE CAUSED BY SUCCESSIVE DISCHARGES.

The "Erosive Action of Inflamed Gases" Causes the First Serious Injury—How the Projectile Helps to Kill the Gun.

The larger a cannon the more extensive are the injuries it receives with each successive discharge. All damage done to a gun is internal. The separate action of the powder and the projectile damages the piece every time it is aimed and fired. Obviously the amount of the damage depends upon the material and workmanship of the gun. Men who make big guns describe the harm done their pets with many intricate and puzzling terms of a scientific turn. In one case a gun is damaged because the part of the bore which contains the powder is enlarged. This happens when the metal is compressed, and it is more dangerous and more plainly seen if the gunners have been using wads between their explosive and their projectile.

Then, again, cavities are produced by the melting away of a part of the metal by the heat of combustion of the charge. Cracks come from the tearing asunder of the particles of the metal at the surface of the bore. When it is first made, a crack of this particular kind is barely perceptible, but it increases each time the gun is fired. Gradually it extends completely through the side of the piece. The crack usually begins at the junction of the chamber with the bore, simply because, as guns now are, this part is not so well supported as the others.

Edward S. Farrow, U. S. A., is authority on damage to guns, although, like all others who have studied the question, he does not agree with very many authorities on all the points to consider in the life of a cannon. He contends that furrowing or scoring produced by the erosive action of inflamed gases is the great disease which attacks the very big guns first. This particular injury is most apparent where the current of the gas is most rapid or at the interior orifice of the vent and on the surface of the bore, directly over the seat of the projectile. This scoring begins very early in the life of a very large gun, but it is conceded that it does not become very important until the piece has been discharged considerably. Lieutenant Farrow describes this scoring as resembling the bark of an aged elm tree, the metal being eaten away into irregular furrows and ridges. In extreme cases, however, scoring has not killed the gun, although in some cases it has acted like a wedge and split the bore at the place attacked.

Where the action of the projectile has ruined the gun the damage has been done around the projectile and in front of it. The elasticity of the metal and the crowding up of portions of it in front of the shot cause a rebounding process. The projectile, carried forward by the force of the charge, strikes against the upper part of the bore; then it is sent against the bottom and again bounds to the top, and so on until it emerges from the piece. The effect of this bounding motion is to raise and depress the gun in its trunnion holes. The accuracy of fire is diminished, and, of course, the gun is unfit for service. Bronze guns are the worst sufferers in this way. Mortars—short and dumpy—are not affected.

To stop the bounding of the projectile gunners wrap the shell in cloth or paper or else shift the base of the mass to be hurled. This last process is considered the best and is done by reducing the diameter of the cartridge and adding to its length. Projectile injury is also caused by furrows or scratches made by rough shells or case shot. Small fragments, too, break away very often from the shells and give the bore a grinding and cutting process, productive of great damage.

Enlargement of the muzzle is another serious injury produced by the projectile. This is caused by a process which seems unavoidable. As the shell leaves the piece it strikes against one portion of the bore. The resistance at the mouth being less than at any other point, the metal naturally yields, and the muzzle of the cannon is elongated in a vertical direction.

Some men who ought to know say that 150 shots, is the life of a very big gun—a 12 or 13 inch weapon. Others place the number of shots at 400 or 500. As a matter of fact, it is all guesswork. The great Krupp gun shown at the World's fair and conceded to be perfect—or supposed to be so—has been discharged less than ten times, and it is now believed to have reached its limit. On the other hand, the big guns of the American battleships have passed the time allotted them by wise men who know guns and apparently are as good as when tested. How soon they may yield, however, is not in the books.

Lieutenant Farrow says that a very large gun should not be expected to stand more than 400 or 500 shots before it will be necessary to open a new vent, closing the old one at its interior orifice. When the gun dies—bursts—the lines of fracture are photographed. Specimens of the metal are saved. Tests are made and conclusions drawn. And Uncle Sam has figured out so many things in this same connection that his guns nowadays are conceded to be better than those of any other maker. They live longer than the wise ones say they should.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Everybody Warned.

An Arizona rancher has posted the following notice on a cottonwood tree near his place: "My wife Sarrah has left my ranch when I didn't Doo a Thing Too her and I want it distinkly understood that any Man as takes her in and Keers for her on my account will get himself Pumped so Full of Led that some tenderfoot will locate him for a mineral claim. A word to the wise is sufficient and orter work on fools."—Denver Times.

Lightning's Assaults.

One of the best evidences of the value of lightning rods up to date has been afforded by the Washington monument. It is capped by a small four sided pyramid of aluminium, which metal, so cheap today, was very costly at the time of the building of the greatest obelisk that the world has ever known. This aluminium tip is connected with the ground by four copper rods which go down deep into the earth. On April 5, 1885, five immense bolts of electricity were seen to flash between the monument and a thundercloud overhanging in the course of 20 minutes. In other words, the monument was struck fiercely five times, but it suffered no damage whatever.

On June 15 of the same year a more tremendous assault was made upon the monument from the heavens, and the result was a fracture of one of the topmost stones. The crack still remains to show what nature can do in the way of an electrical shock, but the slightness of the damage is evidence of man's power to protect himself from such attacks. The obelisk is ideally located for attracting electrical assaults from the skies, and yet, while many times hit, it has suffered only once, and that time to a trifling extent.—Boston Transcript.

The Hour of Lincoln's Shooting.

A highly interesting story is told to account for the fact that almost every wooden clock in America has its hands painted to indicate the hour of 18 minutes past 8. It is related that most such watchmakers' signs were originally made by one man, who was at first in the habit of painting the hands to indicate any old or young hour that struck his fancy when he came to that part of the job. But when President Lincoln was assassinated he conceived the idea of commemorating the event by recording the hour and minute thereof upon all his wooden timepieces, a custom ever since perpetuated. There is something striking and dramatic about this notion of time standing still forever after an event of such tragic significance. There is no doubt about the fact that nearly all the wooden clocks do indicate the hour of 18 minutes past 8. You can see that for yourself. But if the clockmaker thought he was thereby recording the hour of the assassination his intelligence was as wooden as his wares, for President Lincoln was shot not at 18 minutes past 8, but at about 15 minutes past 10.—New York Post.

A Timely Event.

The bell at the parsonage went ting-a-ling, and, as the dominie was in his study and his wife getting the baby to sleep, Master Harold, aged 7, went to the door. On opening it he found a couple, evidently from the country, both young and bashful; but, after looking at the boy a moment, the young man queried, "Is the parson to home?"

"Yes," said Harold. "Do you want to get married?"

"That's just what we're here for," said the prospective bridegroom as he looked fondly at the blushing girl by his side.

"Well, come right in, then," said the boy, ushering them into the parlor, and when they had seated themselves on the edge of two chairs side by side he started off, saying: "I'll call pa, and ma too. She'll be awful glad, for she has all the marryin money, and I heard her tell pa this mornin that she wished some folks would come to get married, 'cause she hadn't 'nough money to buy her new hat."—Chicago News.

Musicians Live Long.

A French writer notes that, though a few great musicians have died young—to wit, Mozart at 35, Schubert at 31, Bellini at 33, Mendelssohn at 38 and Weber when he was but 40—a large number have lived to be very old men. Those who died between 60 and 70 years of age include Bach, Von Bulow and Rubinstein. Living beyond 70 years came Gluck, Gounod, Handel, Liszt, Meyerbeer, Rossini, Spontini and Wagner, while the great age of 89 was attained by Auber and others. Dying at more than 80 were Cherubini, Cramer, Lachner, Palestrina, Rameau, Schutz and Taubert. The average age of musical celebrities is about 67 years.

A robust, manly son and a cooing baby-girl nestling in her bosom — what more can any womanly woman ask? It is a boon that Heaven intended should be granted to every woman.

Thousands fail of this because they have neglected to look after their health in a womanly way. The health of a woman's babies is dependent upon her own health during the period of prospective maternity. The prospective mother cannot be too particular about her physical condition. If she suffers from local weakness, nervousness or loss of vigor and virility, her children will be weak, puny and sickly. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only unfailing cure for all weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that bear the brunt of maternity. It makes these organs strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It makes the prospective mother strong and cheerful. It robs maternity of its perils. It insures a baby constitutionally strong. It is the invention of an eminent and skillful specialist, who has had thirty years' training in this particular branch, during which time he and his staff of physicians have prescribed for many thousands of women. Medicines dealers sell it and an honest dealer will not urge upon you an inferior substitute merely for the little added profit he may make thereon.

"I am the mother of a nice baby four and a half months old," writes Mrs. J. B. Clough, (Box 203,) of Lisbon, Grafton Co., N. H. "I cannot give too much praise to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good."

An Improvement Club.

Now that the election is over let the people of Sonoma get together and organize a public improvement club. Much good can be derived by the formation of such a society in our midst. Ways and means may be devised for starting up enterprises in Sonoma that will increase our population and inject into business channels new life and energy. The town's health could also be looked after and its sanitary condition improved. There is a wide field here for an improvement club and the sooner one is organized the better it will be for the business interests and health of the town.

THERE are always those who will kick. For instance, if you publish jokes with whiskers on them some will say you ought to be in a lunatic joint. If you don't print something to smile at, they say you are a pessimistic fossil. If you spread yourself and write a good, original article, they will say it is stolen. If you reprint an article, they say you can't write. If you say a deserving word for a man, you are partial; if you compliment the women, the men are jealous, and if you don't the verdict of the women is to the effect that your paper is not fit to use in the construction of a bustle. If you stay in your office, you are afraid to remain on the streets; if you do, you are lazy. If you look seedy, you are squandering your money; if you wear good clothes, you are a dude, and don't pay for them. If you play a social game of any kind and get stuck, you are a fish; if you win, you are a tin horn, and so it goes through one continual round of pleasant complications.—Ex.

ROBERT A. THOMPSON, it now transpires, has been defeated by Curry for Secretary of State by 4,000 majority. The news will be a disappointment to Mr. Thompson's friends in this county who voted for him regardless of politics.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

President McKinley Calls Upon the People to Give Thanks.

The President has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES — A PROCLAMATION: November brings to mind the customs of our ancestors, rooted by time in our most sacred traditions of giving thanks to Almighty God for all the blessings he has vouchsafed to us during the past year.

Few years in our history have afforded such cause for thanksgiving as this. We have been blessed by abundant harvests, our trade and commerce have been wonderfully increased, our public credits being improved and strengthened, all sections of our common country have been brought together and knitted into closer bonds of national purpose and unity.

The skies have been for a time darkened by the cloud of war, but as we were compelled to take up the sword in the cause of humanity, we are permitted to rejoice that the conflict has been of short duration, and the losses we have had to mourn, though grevious and important, have been so few, considering the great result accomplished, as to inspire us with gratitude and praise to the Lord of Hosts. We may laud and magnify His Holy Name that the cessation of hostilities came so soon as to spare both sides the countless sorrows and disasters that attend protracted war.

I do, therefore, invite all my fellow citizens, as well those at home, as those who may be at sea or sojourning in foreign lands, to set apart and observe Thursday, the 24th day of November, as a day of national thanksgiving to come together in their several places of worship for a service of praise and thanks to Almighty God for all the blessings of the year; for the mildness of the season and the fruitfulness of the soil; for the continued prosperity of the people; for the devotion and valor of our countrymen; for the glory of our victory and the hope of a righteous peace, and pray that the divine guidance, which has brought us heretofore to safety and honor, may be graciously continued in the years to come.

In witness whereof, etc.,

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

By the President:

JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

U. S. GRANT, if he is not thrust aside by the machine, will undoubtedly be the next United States Senator from California. The very fact of the San Francisco Call throwing cold water on his candidacy makes him a safe man to bet on.

COUNTY HAPPENINGS.

John Snider Maybee, a pioneer resident of Petaluma, is dead.

Joseph Hoppe of Petaluma captured a burglar in his residence last Sunday night and turned him over to officer Collins.

From $5000 to $6000 is being paid over the counters in the County Tax Collector's office daily in state and county taxes.

A conference of the county school trustees will probably be arranged by County Superintendent Nielsen during the meetings of the teacher's association in Santa Rosa in December.

There will be between fifty and sixty applicants for primary and grammar grade teacher's certificates at the December examination. For the past ten years at the examinations this has been the average number of applicants.

Congressman and Mrs. J. A. Barham and Miss Lena Barham departed Tuesday afternoon for Washington, D. C. They did not expect to leave Santa Rosa before November 28th, but were summoned there on the account of the very serious illness of Charles Barham.

M. Mego of East Petaluma found a three-foot shark early Tuesday evening in a shallow pool in McNear's canal. Procuring a club Mr. Mego waded in after the shark, and after a lively tussel, succeeded in killing it. The carcass was pulled ashore and the skin will be preserved.

As the result of jumping from a moving train, Lee Cook of Santa Rosa now nurses a seriously sprained ankle. The gentleman acted the gallant to a young lady friend who was departing on the Southern Pacific train Wednesday morning, and before he had safely deposited her traveling baggage the train moved from the station. When it reached Fourth street Mr. Cook attempted to alight, but his foot struck a rock and he was thrown heavily. He will now use crutches for several days and be wary of moving trains in future.

AN ANCIENT CHESS KING.

Haply some rajah first in the ages gone
Amid his languid ladies fingered thee,
Whilesa black nightingale, sun swart as he,
Sang his one wife love's passionate oraison;
Haply thou mayst have pleased Old Prester John
Among his pastures when full royally
He sat in tent, grave shepherds at his knee,
While lamps of balsam winked and glimmered on.
What dost thou here? Thy masters are all dead,
My heart is full of ruth and yearning pain
At sight of thee, O king, that hast a crown
Outlasting theirs, and tellst of greatness fled
Through cloud hung nights of unabated ring
And murmurs of the dark majestic town.
—Jean Ingelow.

"A SAD NIGHT."

How Carlyle and Leigh Hunt Differed Even About the Sky.

Leigh Hunt and Carlyle were once present at a small party of equally well known men. It happened that the conversation rested with these two, and the others sat, well pleased to listen. Leigh Hunt talked on in his bright and hopeful way, when Carlyle would drop some heavy tree trunk across his pleasant stream and bank it up with philosophical doubts and objections at every interval, but Hunt never ceased his joyous anticipations nor saturnine Carlyle his infinite demurs. The listeners laughed and applauded by turns, and now fairly pitted them against each other as the philosophers of hopefulness and unhopefulness. The contest continued with ready wit, philosophy, pleasantry and profundity and extensive knowledge of books and character.

The opponents were so well matched that it was quite clear that the contest would last indefinitely, but night was far advanced, and the party now broke up. They all sallied forth, and, leaving the close room, the candles and the arguments behind them, found themselves under a most brilliant and starlight sky. They looked up. Carlyle can have no answer to this, thought Hunt, and shouted: "There! Look at that glorious harmony that sings with infinite voices an eternal song of hope in the soul of man!"

Carlyle looked up. They all remained silent to hear what he would say. They began to think he was silenced at last, but out of the silence came a few low toned words in a broad Scotch accent:

"Eh, it's a sad night!"

They all laughed and then looked thoughtful. There might be some reason for sadness, too—that brilliant firmament perhaps contained infinite worlds, each full of struggling and suffering beings.

Didn't Worry.

After three successive failures in a costly experiment one of Mr. Edison's associates, worn out with the strain, asked, "Why don't you worry a little about it, Mr. Edison?"

"Why should I?" replied the inventor. "You are worrying enough for ——."

SUPERIOR COURT.

Cases Disposed of Last Monday by Judges Dougherty and Burnett.

There were a number of interesting legal matters before the superior judges on Monday when the calendar was called.

Judge Dougherty's calendar was as follows:

These civil matters were set for trial: J. W. Horn vs. Silvio Piezzi, for November 23rd. Sequira vs. Constant, for November 29th.

December 1st was the date set for settling the bill of exceptions in the action brought by the Santa Rosa National Bank against Anna Lewis.

The suit of Horn vs. Pederson was submitted and taken under advisement.

Wellington Appleton was appointed executor of the will of Fred. S. Clark. No bond was required. T. J. Butts was appointed attorney to represent absent heirs.

Mrs. Dollie F. Richards was appointed executrix of the will of the late Grant O. Richards. No bond was required.

A sale of real estate was confirmed in the estate of James Aitken.

These probate matters were continued: Estate of Eleanor Walker, John Schrauder and Anna D. Burnett to November 21st.

A sale of real estate was confirmed in the matter of the estate of J. J. Gobbi.

In department two, Judge A. G. Burnett presiding, these matters were disposed of:

The suit of Barry vs. Barry, which involved the partition of 640 acres of land near Petaluma, was dismissed. The case was amicably settled.

In the suit of Nancy Walker against Fred. Walker the order to show cause was dismissed and default was entered.

The suit of Lucas vs. Edwin Reynolds was submitted and taken under advisement.

The suit of W. H. Weilby vs. F. T. Duhring was continued to November 21st.

In the suit of Deonore Silva vs. John J. Silva an order for the payment of $20 per month alimony from August 1st, 1898, was made, together with the payment of $100 attorney's fees and $25 costs. The custody of the child was awarded to the mother by the consent of the father, the father to have the privilege of visiting once a week. The child will not be removed from the county without the order of the court. The trial was set for December 1st.

In the injunction suit brought by the Healdsburg Electric Light and Power Company against the City of Healdsburg, the plaintiff was granted fifteen days to amend by making the Oakland Bank of Savings a party defendant. The court ordered the injunction to remain in force.

Would you feel perfectly safe to put all your money in a new bank? One you have just heard of?

But how about an old bank? One that has done business for over a quarter of a century? One that has always kept its promises? One that never failed; never misled you in any way?

You could trust such a bank, couldn't you?

Good Reasons For Giving.

At the meeting of the Fifeshire association held in London Dr. Wallace told a story of a pensioner who used to stand with a placard on his breast enumerating his claims to the coppers he begged. The list ran thus: "Battles, 4; wounds, 5; children, 6; total, 15." This is almost as good as Sir M. Grant-Duff's story of the Irish beggar who prayed, "For the love of God, sir, give me a crust, for I am so thirsty that I don't know where I shall sleep tonight!"—London Globe.

The Bishop's Advice.

A clergyman once complained to Bishop Blomfield of London that his parishioners were indifferent to his teachings.

"No sooner," said he, "do I begin to preach than they begin to doze."

"Do you," asked the bishop, "preach your own sermons?"

"Always, my lord, always."

"Then, my good friend, suppose you try some one else's," retorted the bishop.

The Apparent Difference.

Johnny—Pa, some of the curious people round here they call "odd" and some of the others "eccentric." What's the difference?

Pa—When a man is said to be eccentric, he usually has more or less money. When he is poor, a man is simply odd.—Boston Transcript.

Twenty-three men in every 1,000 serving in the British army are 6 feet and upward in height; 33 in every 1,000 are 5 feet 11 inches, and 58 in every 1,000 5 feet 10 inches. There are 785 in every 1,000 army men under 5 feet 9 inches.

Habits in Tuscany.

Many mediæval habits still survive in Tuscany. The dead are buried by mysterious men in long, black masks, carrying huge torches. "Palmers" walk the streets with bare feet and ragged cloaks, telling their beads on their way to pilgrimage; mendicant friars, with colored crosses sewed upon their breasts, solicit alms, and religious processions, comprising all sorts of ecclesiastics in old fashioned vestments, are so familiar that they scarcely attract any attention as they pass.

Tolstoi.

A Moscow letter in the Paris Temps describes Tolstoi as still absorbed in his philanthropic and religious activities, having now reached as lofty a scorn for "science for science's sake" as he had before expressed for art for art's sake. The trouble is that he can make nobody understand him. He cries out to his fellows, "Why, open your eyes and look, it is as clear as day!" But they remain as blind and puzzled as ever.

Broke Even.

Guy Smith stopped at a certain gate the other day with a load of watermelons and called for his best girl to give her the choicest one he had. The girl had on her mother's dress and was ashamed to go, but on reaching the door she found that Guy was barefooted and had on his father's breeches. The girl said, "Guy, we are even; all but the melon, and I've got that."—Washington (Ga.) Gazette.

A SONOMA BOY IN HONOLULU.

Charley Hanks' Experience in the Army.

Surrounded by Sickness, Misery and Death.

Chas. Hanks, grandson of Mrs. Jas. Ruffner of this place, who enlisted in one of the regiments of California Volunteers, and left for Honolulu several months ago, has been heard from. He is now quartered with his regiment at Honolulu. Under date of September 5th he writes as follows from that city:

"I write to let you know that I am still alive, but that is about all. I am suffering from rheumatism, which has attacked my hips, and I can hardly move. I am up on crutches to-day for the first time in several weeks. I hope to be home by Christmas, as I expect a furlough, after which I may be able to get my discharge. This country is no place for me and my comrades. We don't seem to get along very well and if I ever get out of this I will keep out, and don't you forget it. No foreign countries for me. You will see a broken up boy when I return. I am nothing but skin and bones. If I ever get my health and strength again and get my discharge I will sweep the streets before I join the army again. It is worse than a dog's life. It is a shame the way they treat some of the men down here. The boys and the doctors though have been very kind to me. They say I am made of steel, but if I am I must be very rusty and badly in need of oiling.

"I am now waiting to see if I am going to get home or not. Oh, won't I be glad if they tell me that I can go home. I will be the happiest boy on earth if I can only get out of this hospital, which is a perfect hell-hole, where all you hear is people groaning and talking out of their heads. Then to see some one that you know taken out dead, and don't know who will be the next. It is very sad to hear young boys lying in their cots with fever and in their delirium talk about and cry out for their folks at home, then die and be buried in a far off foreign land.

"Well, I have seen a lot since I joined the army. It has taught me to let well enough alone."

SINGULAR DEATH.

George Wadsworth Found Dead Near Pueblo, Colorado.

He Was the Father of J. Wadsworth and Was on His Way from Illinois to Visit His Son Here.

John Wadsworth of this place received a telegram from Pueblo, Colorado, on Friday morning of last week stating that his father Geo. Wadsworth of Reynolds, Illinois, who was on his way to this valley to spend the holidays, was found dead at a small railway station eight miles from Pueblo on the day previous. He was discovered lying alongside the track and foul play is suspected. Full particulars of his death have not yet been received and it can only be conjectured how he was killed.

Mr. Wadsworth telegraphed for the remains and they arrived here yesterday morning.

The funeral will take place this afternoon from Mr. Wadsworth's residence at 2 o'clock. Interment in Valley Cemetery.

SUPERVISOR CONTEST

Wall, Republican, Elected in the Second District.

His Majority is Only Seventeen—His Election Will be Contested in the Courts.

The Board of Supervisors on Wednesday completed the canvass of the election returns in the Second Supervisorial District, in which Gallant Rains, Democrat, and David Walls, Republican, were candidates for the office of Supervisor.

According to the official count David Walls is elected Supervisor by a majority of 17 votes over Mr. Rains. The figures are as follows:

Precinct	Rains	Walls
Bloomfield	84	66
Forestville	60	104
Marin	49	59
Petaluma 1	63	19
Petaluma 2	112	114
Petaluma 3	99	81
Petaluma 4	90	109
Petaluma 5	61	89
Sebastopol N	115	98
Sebastopol S	89	61
Wilson	101	138
Totals	921	938

In South Sebastopol the footings of the tally sheet as carried out by the judges showed that Mr. Rains had received 94 votes, while the actual number of tallies figures up 89 votes.

Several little irregularities were discovered during the canvass.

The present intention is to carry the matter into the courts. The Board is now working on the returns from the other precincts in the county.

CITY TRUSTEES.

At a regular meeting of the City Trustees last Wednesday evening little business was transacted. President Duhring was in the chair, and a full Board present.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Clerk Poppe the following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

L. H. Green, lumber	$91.00
R. A. Poppe, salary	25.00
J. Revie, teaming	21.75
B. L. Cook, sprinkling	57.57
Total	$195.32

The application to refund poll and road taxes of the members of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Company was laid ove until a list is submitted of those who attended two-thirds of the semi-monthly meetings of the company.

The Plaza Committee was authorized to cover the abandoned well on the northwest corner of the Plaza, which was reported insecure by Marshal Robin.

The Board then adjourned.

Crushed by the Cars.

Ernest Skillman of Petaluma, son of Roadmaster T. T. Skillman, had a narrow escape from instant death on Friday of last week and, as it was, received injuries and may be permanently disabled. Mr. Skillman was recently promoted from baggage master at the local depot to a position as brakeman on the day freight, says the Petaluma Courier.

On Friday noon at Geyserville, while making up the train, he was thrown from the top of a box car to the ground by a sudden lurch of the car. The train was in motion at the time and he fell between two box cars and partially across the track. He threw himself to one side and away from the rail, but his left foot, although off the rail, was caught between the edge of the wheel and the ground. It was badly crushed at the ankle joint and instep. Several of the smaller bones of the foot were broken and the ligaments and muscles were crushed and torn. The large bones of the leg escaped uninjured, but as far as the knee the leg is black and swollen to twice its natural size.

The sufferer was placed on the 4:10 train and brought to Petaluma. He was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Laoque, near Cedar Grove. Dr. Schumann was summoned and is in attendance on the sufferer and hopes to save the injured foot.

THE DONAHUE RAILWAY.

Will Now Build North from Ukiah to Eureka.

A. W. Foster and Associates Gain Complete Control.

A. W. Foster and his associates of the California Northwestern Railway Company have purchased the stock of the Donahue road owned by the Smith-Borel syndicate for $750,000.

When President A. W. Foster and his associates leased the entire stock of the San Francisco and North Pacific railroad to the California Northwestern Railway company for twenty years and made Gilbert Palache General Manager, it was not long until financiers became aware of the fact that by a well-planned stratagem Mr. Foster had avoided the threatened consolidation which next January would have given the stockholders of the North Pacific Coast control of the Donahue line. The success of this move is now apparent, for the defeated stockholders have, figuratively speaking, "thrown up the sponge."

On Wednesday evening of last week the entire stock of the Smith-Borel syndicate was transferred to Mr. Foster and his associates.

Thirty-seven thousand and five hundred shares changed hands. The price paid was $20 a share—25 cents less than that given at the boom sale of 1893—aggregating the sum of $750,000.

By this deal Foster, Palache and their associates gain complete control of every share of capital stock in the broad-gage line, which insures an end of the costly litigation that has brought the affairs of the road so prominently before the public and for a long time has prevented the company extending its lines into new territory.

The trouble began when Sidney V. Smith broke with Foster and refused to adher to an agreement entered into in 1893, after 42,000 shares of stock were bought by Smith, Foster and Andrew Markham. Then A. Borel and other narrow-gauge stockholders bought 18,000 shares of stock from the Seligmans of New York, which would have given them complete control of the line at the election to be held in January next. The intention, after consolidating the lines, was to discontinue the Tiburon branch for passenger service and have a single ferry system to Sausalito. The leasing proposition settles this plan, and the late sale settles everything.

It is asserted by Mr. Foster that as soon as possible the contemplated extension from Ukiah north to Eureka will be made a reality. It is rumored that Mr. Foster will soon succeed Mr. Palache as President of the new company.

YOUNG GRIFFIN, TRAIN WRECKER

He Will Be Sentenced to the State's Prison for Life.

The Jury Recommends the Fiend to the Mercy of the Court and Saves His Neck.

Hugh C. Griffin, who recently wrecked the Southern Pacific train at Gelston station near Glen Ellen, was convicted in the Superior Court last Saturday, and his punishment was fixed at imprisonment for life. The jury were only a few minutes deliberating on their verdict. They had one of two things to do, either to convict the accused and fix the punishment at hanging or life imprisonment, or else find a verdict of not guilty. The jury convicted Griffin and fixed life imprisonment as his punishment. The verdict was accompanied by a recommendation to mercy. The prisoner, who was remanded to the Santa Rosa jail, will be sentenced next Monday by Judge Burnett.

An Important Difference.

To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not afflicted with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all druggists.

Death of G. Ricci.

Germano Ricci, a well-known Italian resident of this place, died at his home on Spain street at an early hour on Tuesday morning. Mr. Ricci had been ailing with a severe cold for a week or two and not considering that he was seriously ill neglected to call in a physician until a few days before he died. Pneumonia had set in and when the doctor arrived he was beyond medical skill. Jim Ricci, as he was familiarly known to all old residents of this valley, was a large and powerful built man and up to a short time before his demise was the picture of health, and his death was a great surprise to his friends. He leaves a wife and two children. Deceased was a native of Italy and aged 46 years.

Hand Book of the Tariff.

The understanding of the complicated provisions of the new tariff has been greatly simplified by the issuance of this manuel, which contains decisions of the Federal Courts, General Appraisers and the Secretary of the Treasury on mooted points. To digest the tariff law is no easy task, but to digest the food taken into the gastric receptacles is rendered facile and agreeable by the systematic use of that thorough stomachic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This is a family medicine of comprehensive uses. It prevents and kills malaria, kidney and rheumatic troubles, remedies nervousness and insomnia, and removes constipation and biliousness. Appetite, as well as the ability to satisfy it without subsequent abdominal disturbance, is restored by this fine stomachic, which also accelerates convalescence. Persons in the decline of life and the infirm of every age and sex find it of material assistance.

Her Splendid Hair.

When Mrs. Norton was in the heyday of her loveliness, a very beautiful Italian woman came to London, bringing letters of introduction. Mrs. Norton asked a small party of fashionable people to meet her at dinner, among whom was Lord Normanby, a great admirer of pretty women. All the men were enchanted with the beautiful stranger and all the women rather jealous. One of her great beauties was a profusion of splendid hair, dressed in innumerable plaits. The women decided they were not all her own. Before the evening was over Lord Normanby expressed his admiration of the wonderful hair and intimated how much he should like to see it let down.

"Since you wish it, my lord," said the woman, and she forthwith unplaited one massive coil after another, while the other women looked on, devoured with envy. "I am doing for you, my lord, what I do not do for everybody," said the houri, casting up her fine eyes at the enraptured Lord Normanby from under her mantle of flowing locks. "It is three weeks now since I last undid my hair."

Which announcement in some degree consoled the English dames for their inferior locks.

Giles In the Pulpit.

The tenets of John Wesley and his disciples were eagerly embraced in Norfolk, and Giles frequently became a local preacher. One "local," Sam by name, is described as "a born teacher," though his similes often dropped to the burlesque. On one occasion he took for his text, "The wages of sin is death," and prefaced his sermon as follows:

"My fri'nds, Brother Paul tells us that the waages o' sin is death. Now, let's see wuther we kin grasp wot he maan by't. S'pose I wor tu go an du my haarwest for Mr. H. (a local farmer), an arter all the wuk wor dun go an ax Mr. T. (another farmer in the same village) fur my waages, wot du yeou think Mr. T. would saay? Sure-ly he would up and saay, 'Sam, yeou air a fule. Go an ax Mr. H. fur yer waages; yeou ha' dun yer haarwest there. Wot du yeou come an ax me fur yer waages fur?' An ef I wuk all my loife fur the daavil an go tu God fur my reward he wool saay, 'No, no, Sam; yeou go tu the daavil fur yer reward; yeou hev wuked fur him in the haarwest o' loife; he must pay yeou.'"—Westminster Gazette.

A Sufficient Diet.

A quart of milk, three-quarters of a pound of moderately fat beef—sirloin, for instance—and five ounces of wheat flour, all contain about the same amount of nutritive material, but we pay very different prices for them, and they have different values for nutriment. The milk comes nearest to being a perfect food. It contains all of the different kinds of nutritive materials that the body needs. Bread made from the wheat flour will support life. It contains all the necessary ingredients for nourishment, but not in the proportions best adapted for ordinary use. A man might live on beef alone, but it would be a very one sided and imperfect diet, but meat and bread together make the essentials of a healthy diet. Such are the results of experience, and the advancing science of later years explains them. This explanation takes into account not simply quantities of meat and bread and milk and other materials which we eat, but also the nutritive ingredients or "nutrients" which they contain.—New York Ledger.

Maiden Speeches.

Sheridan, one of the greatest of British orators and who entered parliament after a conspicuously successful literary career, so nearly broke down in his maiden effort that the general verdict pronounced upon him was that "nature never intended him for an orator."

Brougham and Canning were equally unsuccessful, and many of the most celebrated speakers of the present day displayed no signs of oratory when they appeared for the first time before the critical assembly at St. Stephen's.

Mr. Gladstone's maiden speech, delivered Feb. 21, 1833, was a nervous, hesitant and almost inaudible effort.

Fire and Water.

Water will extinguish a fire because the water forms a coating over the fuel, which keeps it from the air, and the conversion of water into steam draws off the heat from the burning fuel. A little water makes a fire fiercer, while a large quantity of water puts it out. The explanation is that water is composed of oxygen and hydrogen. When therefore the fire can decompose the water into its simple elements, it serves as fuel to the flame.

A Unique Sign.

A sign which was productive of much discussion was read by the patrons of a small laundry establishment in a Massachusetts town.

It was printed in large letters on a piece of brown paper and pinned to the door of the shop. It ran thus:

"Closed on account of sickness till next Monday, or possibly Wednesday. I am not expected to live. Shall be unable to deliver goods for at least a week in any case."

Why He Refused to Pay.

"One dollar, please," said the clairvoyant.

"Not much," he replied. "I'll not pay you a cent."

"Do you think I reveal the future for nothing?"

"I don't care anything about that. You told me I was to marry three times, and I don't propose to put a premium on bad news."—Chicago News.

A shrewd old doctor once said: "If I wanted to torture an enemy, I would tell him he had an incurable disease. His life would be miserable, and he would be almost certain to die before his time."

The colder the climate the greater the size of the human brain.
